BISMARCK Earl Wright was taken to the Missouri Pacific hospital the last of the week, where he underwent an operation for stomach trouble. The operation revealed that he was suffering from an ulcer of the stomach, and that it had penetrated the walls of his stomach, and his condition was pronounced dangerous and at this writing—Tuesday—he is hovering between life and death. Mr. Wright had been ill practically all summer but was thought to be on the road to recovery until about eleven o'clock Wednesday night, when he grew worse, and the above had to be done. A large number of his friends are eagerly awaiting news from his bedside. We all hope he will pass through the sickness, as he is one of our most popular citizens, he having conducted an ice cream parlor and baker shop here for years. The Elvins first team was here Sunday afternoon, and by receiving all of the breaks of the game were able to beat Bismarck in eleven innings by the score of five to four. The poor base throwing by the Bismarck infielders accounted for their downfall. It looked in the tenth inning that the Elvins pitcher would not pull through the battle with "flying colors" as Bismarck had men on first and second with only one down, and F. Matkin, their heavy hitter, at the bat. The crowd gave a great cheer. Gordon wound up, and fired one across, and Matkin hit it square in the face and started it on its ride to the outfield but Freeman managed to get under it. The next batter was retired at first, and the Bismarck rooters' hopes vanished. Elvins won the game in the eleventh on a hit coupled with errors. She had been sick for some time but on the day she passed away she felt better than usual until in the afternoon when she suffered a paralytic stroke and the summons came and took her out of her suffering in the evening. All join in extending sympathy to Rev. Webb in his hour of sorrow. After suffering for a few weeks with spinal meningitis, Florence, the eleven-months-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Geo.
